TINLEY PARK VOTE RECOUNT IN COUNTY COURT IS CONTINUED FOR TEN DAYS; OTHER NEWS.

Tinley Park, April 23—(Special)—The matter of recounting the votes cast in Bremen township at the annual town election held on April 6th, was to have come up before the county judge of Cook county, Wednesday, but the matter was continued for 10 days. The recount has been demanded by parties who feel that some of the precincts in the township threw out more votes as defective than they should have. A very interesting time is looked for when recount is made. The affair is engaging the lion's share of local public interest right now.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edward Mau of St. James, Minn., passed away at the hospital in that city at 12:45 Easter Sunday morning following an illness of but three days. She was removed to the hospital Saturday afternoon for an operation for gall stones and succumbed after being on the operating table only a matter of a few moments.

Dora Oltman was born in Germany May 8th, 1856, and came with her parents to this country when a girl but twelve years old. The family located at Tinley Park, Ill. In 1873 deceased was united in marriage to Christ Bruening. To this union seven children were born, 3 of whom survive. They are: Mrs. Emil Neibur of Palestine, Ill., Mrs. Herman Mau of Long Lake township, Minn., and Dick Bruening of Tinley Park, Ill. Christ Bruening died in 1891 and October 17th, 1895, the widow was united in marriage to Edward Mau residing near Frankfort, Ill.

Seventeen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Mau bought a farm in Long Lake township, Minn., where they made their home for five years when they removed to Welcome, Minn., returning to the farm two years later when they resided again for a period of 3 years when they removed to Truman, Minn., and after a residence of four years in that village, they came to St. James, Minn., two years ago last fall and have since resided in that city.

Besides the sorrowing husband and the children named, Mrs. Mau leaves five step-children: Ernest Mau of Galena township, Minn., Edward Jr. of Mankato, Minn., Herman of Long Lake, Minn., Henry of Waverly, Minn., and Mrs. Ida Schoop of Joliet, Ill.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon April 7th at the German Lutheran church in St. James, Rev. Pankow officiating, and the remains were laid to rest at Mt. Hope cemetery. We extend sincere sympathy to the sorrowing ones.

NEW SHOEMAKER COMING

Chas. Holstein has rented the as a tinsorial parlor to a shoemaker building lately occupied by Joe Greco from Blue Island. A sign has been placed in the window of the building stating that a new shoe store and shoe repairing shop is to be opened therein by the first of May.

NAIL SCARCITY IN TINLEY

Among the various things that are "short" is now found such a common article as nails. Not an ounce of nails can be obtained in the Tinley Park stores or the local lumber yard. Carpenters are in a quandary what to do for the much needed article. Other towns and cities are reporting a shortage of the same article. The shortage is blamed on strike conditions and the inability of the manufacturers to put out the product owing to lack of material.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

Tinley Park has been a busy little burg the past week as concerns real estate deals. J. H. Schumacher has purchased the J. M. Studer property paying $4250.00 for same. This place if it were to be built today could not be duplicated for $6,000.00 if not a lot more.

Mr. Schumacher expects to take possession of his newly acquired property soon as the Studer family vacates same.

John Rick is another real estate buyer, having purchased a cottage from Wm. F. Koehler, the consideration it is said is over $3,000.00.

DANCE A BIG SUCCESS

The dance directed at the Saenger hall by the Y. P. W. last Saturday night was a big success. The hall was thronged by dancers from surrounding towns as well as from Tinley Park. Everyone had a good time.

OPENS SUB-DIVISION BOOM

John Rauhoff has launched a new boom for selling lots in his sub-division in the west end of the village. Mr. Rauhoff has issued some interesting literature in regards to his lots and the desirability of living in Tinley Park and hopes to get home seekers to locate here and help make Tinley Park one of the best little towns on the globe.

VILLAGE DADS REPORT

The city fathers have made their annual report of the financial condition of the village and the statement shows that the total receipts for the year total $4,965.41 and the total expenses were $3,182.06 for the year. The balance on hand is $1,783.35 showing that this town is far from being "broke" in comparison with the less fortunate surrounding towns.

OTHER NEWSY NOTES

Fred Hick, of the local firm of Hick and Messenbrink was taken ill on Monday and has been confined to his home since. His friends hope for an early recovery.

Peter Nielsen who recently sold his property, has had his household goods moved to Harvey to the home of his daughter with whom he will make his future home.

Mrs. Miller of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Reinhold Mangha and Mrs. McKay of Chicago were guests at the Henry Glogowart home over Sunday. In connection with the visit, the guests celebrated the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Glogowart. Many pretty gifts of silver were received by the worthy couple.

Selma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bruggemann who has been at the St. Luke hospital, Chicago following an operation, returned the latter part of the week and is convalescing nicely.

James Studer, Jr., is ill with scarlet fever. The home is under quarantine.

The play which was presented at the Saenger hall Sunday night by the Coopers Grove Lutheran church was well attended and was much enjoyed by those present.

A company of relatives and friends congregated at the home of Mrs. Fred Hopman to remind her of her birthday anniversary. The usual good time was enjoyed.

VILLAGE ELECTION TAME

The annual village election held Tuesday was a very tame affair. As there was no opposition very little interest was taken. A very light vote was cast. The candidates elected are as follows:

Village Clerk—Chas. F. Nielsen. Village Trustees, Wm. F. Koehler, Wm. Siemsen and Edward Goessel.

LATE CROPS

Farmers in this section have not been able to get into the fields on account of the heavy rains. It is feared that the crops will be late this year, but the more optimistic farmers say that with warm weather and a plenty of sunshine together with an occasional good shower the crops will flourish and ripen in due time. Winter wheat has suffered from the cold and has been winter killed in places. Spring wheat is going to be a late crop. Very little has been sown on account of the rainy weather. The farmers hope to be able to get the crop in within the next few weeks, weather conditions permitting. Many fields in this vicinity have been turned into miniature lakes the past few weeks. Nature has been extremely "wet" for several weeks.

RETURNS FROM FLORIDA

Miss Rosa Strassenberg who has been spending the winter at Tarpon Springs, Florida has returned the past week. She reports a most delightful time. She will go to California next.

NEW LENOX PROPERTY SOLD IN BANKRUPTCY

New Lenox, April 23—The property of Willis Morris one time resident of New Lenox and former grain dealer, was sold by order of the Joliet National Bank Trustee to satisfy the claims of the bankrupt man's debtors, Wednesday afternoon. The property was sold as follows:

House and lot to Wm. Cleveland of Homer for $2,850.00. An auto to a Joliet party for $600.00. Electric washing machine to Edward Francis for $65.00. Rug to Mrs. Wm. Gulickson for $31.00. Bed to Mrs. Taylor for $4.00. Piano to Peter Johnson for $125.00. Cook stove, oil stove and base burner to Wm. Cleveland for $35.00. A manure spreader and a delivery wagon were also sold.

FUND GOES TO HONOR SOLDIER DEAD

Last year when the county home coming celebration was being arranged for, New Lenox Township was asked to raise $200 as its quota toward paying for the celebration, but as the New Lenox committee was a little slow in getting the quota raised, they found that enough money had been raised in other parts of the county to make up, and that all bills had been paid, so they found themselves with the fund of $200 on hand. The money was held until this spring when the matter was brought up before the voters at the annual town meeting and it was voted to place the fund at the disposal of the Memorial Day Committee to pay for the annual Memorial Day Celebration.

A meeting of the New Lenox Association was held Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Urch at which the matter was taken up. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. The following trustees were elected:

Mrs. J. C. Urch, Miss Hattie Francis, Mrs. A. J. Kennedy, Mary Brisbane, Mrs. Geo. Francis, Mrs. J. R. Bentley, Mrs. Margaret Doig, Mrs. C. J. Jones and Mrs. Chas. Francis.

Mrs. Crosby of Boston, Mass., is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Wilbur Francis. Misses Edna McDonald and Lizzie Peterson spent Friday in Chicago.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE NEWS-BULLETIN

The News-Bulletin did something last week that it has not been in the custom of doing and that was the running of advertisements on the front page. The heavy run of advertisements taxed the space far beyond capacity. The News-Bulletin is establishing the fact that it pays to advertise and its advertising patronage is showing a constantly growing volume of business. The News-Bulletin is not carrying advertisements on the front page, but only in emergency cases will this be done. We are sure that you will find the News-Bulletin the best medium in this section in which to place your advertisement before the public. Our advertisers report good results from their ads in the News-Bulletin columns and this fact is attested to by the large amount of space that our advertisers are using.

MOKENA BOND ISSUE CARRIED BY LARGE VOTE

Mokena, April 23—The bond issue of the village of Mokena went thru Tuesday with a 2 to 1 vote. This bond issue is for $2,000 for the purpose of drilling a new well and putting in new equipment and erecting a new pumping station. The vote stood 35 against and 52 votes in favor of the proposition.

There was very little interest on the regular village officer's ticket. The office of village clerk caused a mild flurry of excitement as there were two contesting candidates for this office. Wm. Semmler and Karl Krapp. After the votes were counted it was found that Mr. Semmler had defeated his opponent by a majority of six votes. Mr. Krapp received 34 votes, Mr. Semmler 40 votes. The ladies votes elected Mr. Semmler. Thanks to the ladies for their loyal support.

The board met Wednesday night to canvass the election returns and approved same, the following being declared elected:

The Man Nobody Knew

By HOLWORTHY HALL

(Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc.)

And Hilliard had all a metropolitan's sensitiveness to the spirit and to the ethics of a men's club. He faltered on the very threshold; and if any other man than Dr. Durant had been his sponsor, he would have fled incontinently, so as not to disturb that rare, indescribable atmosphere which only clubmen understand and respect.

The Doctor was scrutinizing the menu; Hilliard, who faced the window, threw a glance over his shoulder. As he had fancied, the eyes of the room were upon him. They reminded him, oddly enough, of machine-gun batteries.

When at length the pair had gained the table nearest the window, Hilliard felt that he had undergone a strenuous ordeal; he was consumed by gratitude to his implacable host, but he had no inclination to repeat it.

"The table d'hôte's good enough for me," said the Doctor presently. "And you?"

"And for me, too," said Hilliard.

"Anything to drink?"

"No, thanks."

The Doctor dropped the card and sat up straighter.

"Well, I won't keep you in suspense—I want some advice. As I said, I'm the worst business man in the world, Hilliard. I'm a mere child in your hands—so please treat me tenderly." He regarded his companion with mingled humor and seriousness. "James Cullen has been telling me about a wonderful plan of yours to make a nice shiny gold eagle grow where only a silver quarter grew before. In fact, he talked so enthusiastically that he's got me thinking about it, too. . . . I rather resent your not telling me about it yourself."

Hilliard recoiled.

"You shouldn't do that!" he said.

"I . . . I wouldn't have tried to interest you in it, Doctor, because—"

"Oh, I can see your reasons," deprecated the Doctor, smilingly. "You didn't want to trespass on a purely social relationship. I appreciate that. But the point is, I've got a few thousand dollars I don't exactly know what to do with. It's a rather extraordinary situation for a professional man, isn't it? I'll have to admit I'm puzzled about it myself. And the novelty might lead me into temptation. So I thought I'd ask your advice."

"You can have the best I've got," said Hilliard, averted. "But I'm not guaranteeing that it has much value, Doctor."

The Doctor nodded; drummed on the table.

"Do you ever let friendship interfere with business?"

"Often, sir."

"Will you let it interfere now—if you think you're justified?"

"Yes, Doctor. . . . I can promise that much, anyway."

The Doctor showed his approval.

"Well, tell me perfectly frankly—is yours the sort of proposition you'd let a man invest in, if you knew he had precious little money to lose? But if you also knew that he were quite willing to take the same chance as the rest?"

Hilliard shook his head slowly, and continued to shake it as he replied.

"I can't say that it is, Doctor. On the contrary—I don't think it's that sort of proposition at all." Dr. Durant's brows were contracted.

"But in the ordinary run of commerce, Hilliard—suppose the question of friendship didn't enter into this, and I hadn't brought up that subject—would you, in choosing your list of subscribers, and selecting the people you'd like to have share the plan with you, put a man like myself on any different footing than James Cullen? Or wouldn't you?"

"Doctor Durant," Hilliard's voice was slow, "is it possible you haven't heard me. . . the criticism that's been flying around town about this syndicate of mine? Haven't you heard that there's some question whether it's quite sound?"

"I've heard it—yes." The Doctor was amazingly indifferent.

"Well—do you still think this is any time to discuss the possibility of your coming in with us?"

The Doctor's voice was strong, encouraging.

"I think it's the best time, and the only time—for me, that is. I've lived too long to be affected by chance rumors. And besides, I've got the money now."

"But are you sure you know what it's all about? The criticism, I mean."

"I don't know anything about it at all. That's exactly why I'm coming to you for advice. You certainly ought to know more about it than any one else does. And, therefore, I'd take your word for it before I'd take the rumor. I want to know if you'll accept me as one of the members of your syndicate."

Hilliard gasped and pushed himself back from the table.

"Doctor!"

"In a way," said Dr. Durant genially, "I'm putting you at a great disadvantage—I know that. But, as I said, I'm not a business man. I have to be guided more or less by instinct. Your business is to know all about these things. So I'm coming to you for your honest opinion, and I know you'll give it to me. . . . do you think I'm quite eligible?"

Hilliard's heart was in his mouth. "Why," he stammered, "at this particular time—I can't advise you—"

"Now, don't be too cautious," warned the Doctor. "I'm not asking you if this is the best investment the world has ever seen—I'm asking if it's reasonably safe, as such things go, with a chance of something really good if your best expectations work out as you hope."

Hilliard's throat was dusty, and his reply came with some difficulty.

"In spite of . . . everything, you'd . . . you'd take my word for it, Doctor?"

"Yes, I would, and I've got Cullen and my own daughter to agree with me. Certainly I'll take your word for it. Would you let me invest say . . . seventy-five hundred dollars?"

Hilliard gulped.

"Not now—no, sir."

"Suppose I'd asked you a week ago—before this miserable story began to go the rounds?"

"I'd have taken it then—perhaps."

The Doctor's eyes snapped.

"You're retiring under fire—are you?"

"No, sir—digging in."

"Simply because of a fatherless report?"

"No, its parents are pretty lively. And the . . . the recent developments haven't been what we . . . expected. It isn't on account of the rumors that I can't let you in, Doctor—it's on account of the facts."

The Doctor remained silent until the waiter had served them, and departed. Then he looked keenly across the table.

"Cullen isn't going to lose his money, is he?"

"Not all of it, anyway."

"Some of it?"

"You never can tell."

"And are you obligated in any way to make good his loss? You, personally, I mean? Either legally or morally?"

Hilliard sighed dispiritedly.

"Why, seeing that not one of these men ever saw the property, or knows anything about it, or about copper mining in general, except what I told them, I feel morally responsible for every cent that's lost, whether I've any legal responsibility or not. That is, I'd make it good—if I could. Of course, I'm hoping that nothing will be lost, but—"

The Doctor's eyes brightened.

"Do Cullen and his friends understand that you hold yourself responsible?"

"I think not. I haven't said so to them yet."

"It isn't a part of your bargain?"

"No, sir."

"They're paying you a brilliant compliment, then."

"I realize that fully," said Hilliard, writhing. The Doctor toyed with his fork.

"You'd do the same for me, I suppose, if I were one of your group?"

"Why, of course—if you had been."

"You wouldn't advise me to go into it, you say, under present conditions?"

"No, sir, I wouldn't. I wouldn't permit it."

"I thought you wouldn't." The Doctor slipped a glass of water thoughtfully. "And that leaves me with seventy-five hundred dollars I still don't know what to do with. Well, if you can think of any reasonable use for it within the next few weeks, let me know, will you? I'll keep it intact until I hear from you."

Something in his tone snatched at Hilliard's heart; he went white as paper.

"Doctor Durant!"

The Doctor smiled slightly. "Any reasonable use, I said. Any form of investment that—"

Hilliard was practically tongue-tied.

"Doctor Durant . . . if I . . . if I see what you mean . . . I . . . if you're willing to take my advice, why—"

"I'm sixty-three years old," said the Doctor calmly, "and I've made a fool of myself in every conceivable way but one. . . . That's in my own field; I'm a diagnostician. I've watched you very carefully, young man. . . . I think perhaps you need as much advice as I do, of a different variety. So here it is—when you want encouragement, or a medical prescription, or a good cigar and a chat, or a quiet evening with an old man and a girl who plays the piano rather pleasantly, or seventy-five hundred dollars which you've already shown you won't let me invest unwisely, come and see me. Now, let's drop business. Not another word: I'm tired of it. You're through as an expert; let's get back to old-fashioned friendship. Speaking of coming to see me—Carol's wondering if you're trying to slight her. We've seen very little of you lately? It's a week now, isn't it?"

When, sustained and soothed by that peaceful hour, by the Doctor's trust in his integrity, and by the sedative of a long and untroubled stroll over the hills to eastward, Hilliard returned to the hotel, the room clerk greeted him with faint superciliousness.

"Somebody's been keeping after you on the telephone all morning," he said loftily. "New York call. Couldn't locate you. And here's some telegrams for you. . . ."

There were three of them; at sight of the signature of the first, Hilliard's eyes narrowed.

"Arriving Syracuse 4:15. Please meet me at train and stop all work in the meantime. Imperative."

"HARMON."

Hilliard's eyelids fluttered; this was evidently the initial result of Rufus Waring's efforts, and of those many letters he had written Harmon. He tore open the second envelope; the message was again from the broker, sent obviously from the Grand Central terminal just before train-time.

"Most important news received. Am just leaving, having wired you meet me at station 4:15. Find out who Bob Waring is and what he wants. Do all you can to save off further inquiry. Absolutely imperative not talk to anyone until I see you. Have contract and all other data with you. Shall have to leave on short notice."

"HARMON."

And the third was from Albany:

"Locate Bob Waring if possible and arrange meeting seven tonight. Urgently imperative."

"HARMON."

Hilliard folded the three sheets methodically and put them in his pocket. He glanced at his watch; it showed a quarter to four. He had no dependence on Harmon, and no fear of him; he felt no obligation to Harmon, no sense of duty. To be sure, he had a cynic's curiosity to see what was in the middle of the whirlwind, but that of itself wasn't strong enough to send him to a rendezvous with a man he despised and loathed.

"If I go," he said to himself, "I'll be sorry; and if I don't go . . . why, if I don't go, I'll always wonder if it would have done any good!"

For himself, there was nothing promising in the situation. But on the millionth chance that something of benefit to his subscribers might come out of it—on the millionth chance that Harmon might be frightened or persuaded into compromise—

So he went.

The very first passenger to reach the platform was Harmon; indeed, he had been fretting in the vestibule for half an hour, intent on saving a useless fraction of a second when the train stopped. At sight of Hilliard, he beamed beneficently—all his earlier belligerence forgotten.

"Hello!" he said. "Glad to see you, son. Got all my messages, did you?"

He shook hands with great urbanity; Hilliard's grasp was hardly responsive.

"I got three," said Hilliard, dignified and noncommittal; and he continued to inspect his employer with ill-concealed disfavor and distrust.

"Well, that's all I sent. Now, where can we go sit down and talk, for a couple of hours? There's a lot to go over, but I want to take the 9:40 West. Not to the Onondaga—I'd rather go somewhere quieter. How about the Kirk?"

"Suits me all right if it does you."

"Any luggage?" They were crossing the tracks to the waiting-room; and Hilliard, in spite of himself, couldn't refrain from the solicitude which any right-minded resident of a city feels for the transient just arrived.

"Only this Gladstone. I can check that here, I guess. Well, I'm certainly glad to see you. Say, were you able to make a date with this Waring person? It was pretty short notice, but you're such a live wire—"

Hilliard, fully comprehending the nature of the compliment, smiled faintly. The person of the broker was physically repulsive to him; unconsciously he edged further away.

"Not yet. But I've left word at his house for him to call me at the hotel, and I'll telephone to the information clerk from the Kirk where he can reach me. He's sure to be in around five or half past."

"I hope so," Harmon swung his heavy bag to the brass-lined counter, and tossed out a dime with a philanthropic gesture which made the attendant glare at him. "Who in thunder is he, anyhow?"

Hilliard had reason to be reticent with his facts, and he preferred not to be too specific at the outset.

"He's a law student—an old friend of the Cullens. He's looking after some of their interests, in one way and another."

"Oh! Working up a practice! Well! the way he's bombarding me with fresh letters, you'd think he was on a congressional investigating committee! Say! There's one thing I'd like to find out—how'd he know I'm in the thing? You didn't tell anybody, did you? Our agreement—"

Hilliard was guiding him to the street.

"Why, he probably got hold of your name when he wrote to some law correspondents of his in Butte about the property; and they looked it up for him. I'd judge they must have gone into it rather thoroughly."

"They did! Humph!" The broker's tone held less of rancor and more disappointment than Hilliard would have expected. "And they made an unfavorable report on it, did they?"

"Unfortunately, for you, they did . . . as you very well know."

Harmon turned on him sharply.

"What do you mean 'unfortunately for me'?"

Hilliard turned into a wide doorway.

"We go in here . . . Why, it puts the quietus on any last hope of yours that there's still some business to be done in Syracuse, doesn't it? I should think that's about as plain as daylight."

Harmon's brows went up.

"What-a-?" he said, and then, promptly, "Oh, yes—of course. But you've been such a live wire from start to finish, I thought the harder the proposition, the better you'd—"

"Oh, don't make me wish I hadn't taken the trouble to meet you!" snapped Hilliard. He slipped into the first unoccupied booth; Harmon followed him stupidly. "The thing's done for, and you know it. Don't act so innocent, Mr. Harmon—it isn't becoming to you, and it isn't helpful to me. We are in a position to talk English, I should imagine."

Harmon's eyes were very small and bright.

"What's he been saying around here?"

"Saying it's a fake promotion. What else would he say? He's quite intelligent. That's why it's unfortunate for you, and that's why we don't need to fool ourselves any further— isn't it?"

As Harmon removed his hat, he appeared to be somewhat warmer than the temperature warranted. His round face was now preternaturally blank; but his urbanity had increased until he was on the verge of fawning.

"So he's been giving out a pretty bad story, has he?"

"Only the bare facts. And if you don't know it already, I'll tell you that cent, Mr. Harmon—it isn't becoming to you, and it isn't helpful to me. We are in a position to talk English, I should imagine."

"What's he been saying around here?"

Harmon leaned forward on his elbows, and drew a quick, nervous breath. His eyes, now slightly dilated, sought for Hilliard's, found them, darted away again.

"That's tough . . . mighty tough . . . I . . . I came up here thinking I might do something about it. Save the situation, you know. Too late, is it?"

"A good deal too late."

Harmon exhaled lengthily, and fumbled for his invariable cigarette; Hilliard observed, without particular deduction, that his hands lacked certainty.

"That does sort of burst the bubble, doesn't it? Well . . . I suppose the next step you want to take is to get out of town."

"No," said Hilliard, "I'll stay till it's over with."

Harmon gasped.

"Stay? Stay here after the news is out? What for?"

"I hardly think you'd understand what I'm staying for, Mr. Harmon."

The fat broker shook his head in vigorous protest.

"Now, look here!" His voice was paternally kind. "You've been a fine sport through this whole business, except once, and we won't let that bother us now. As a salesman you've been a holy wonder. You've done all I expected you'd do, or could do, and then some. And your flare-up last time I was here don't hurt you with me one little bit. But here we are at the finish. My suggestion to you is to pack your duds and get out. Call it a day and quit. There's better business somewhere else. And if you'd like to plant yourself in some other good town, say, Detroit, and—"

"No, thanks," Hilliard's smile was out of genuine humor.

"Well, aren't you open to conviction?"

"No, I don't think I am. Please don't argue—that's final."

"Well, you're sure you can't do any more here, aren't you?"

"Not a nickel's worth—even if I wanted to. And would you mind getting down to brass tacks? Otherwise I can't see any benefit to either of us from prolonging this interview; can you?"

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC.

Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912; of The News-
Bulletin published weekly at Mokena,
Ill., for April 1, 1920.

State of Illinois, County of Will, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Wm. Semmler, who having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor of The News-Bulletin and that the following is to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912.

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor and business managers are:

Name of publisher—Wm. Semmler.

Post Office Address—Mokena, Ill.

Editor—Wm. Semmler.

City Could Use More Cats.

It is estimated that there are in Paris 240,000 cats. The "official cats," which keep the museums and offices free of rats and mice, cost the state $3 a head a year for upkeep, so that if the private cats cost an equal amount the total would be about $750,000 a year, says the London Mail. But, judging by the number of rats one sees in the streets of Paris before dawn, feeding from the refuse boxes, several thousand more cats would be a good investment, for the amount of damage done by rats must be enormous.

Remedies for Cholera.

Old-fashioned Turkish physicians have plenty of remedies for cholera.
An agate in the pocket and a hyacinth worn near the neck are much esteemed, but the bone of a dead child carried in the pocket is regarded as nearly as efficacious.

Good for the Owl.

An owl observer saw an owl swallow nine field mice, one after another, and at the expiration of four hours it swallowed four more mice. The farmer should take notice of these facts, for he can well spare a chicken now and then for the services thus rendered.—Exchange.

IN these times of high but-one-fourth more cream and do it with less work and in shorter time.

Neither is there any ex-

Sharples Moto Milker

THIS Moto Milker enables one to do the work of three. One man can, alone, milk 15 cow herd in about 45 minutes. It stands you about $300 a year. The Moto Milker requires no installation of pipe lines, has no pulsators, no belts, no gauges, no tanks no stall cocks, no springs, and no diaphragms. Any "Farm Lighting" Plant will furnish the electric power to run it. The Moto Milker is so simple that any farm hand can operate it. It is durable and strong. There are only about one-third as many parts on it as on an ordinary farm engine, and it runs one-tenth as fast.

Acid Stomach Makes the Body Sour

Nine Out of Ten People
Suffer From It

It sends its harmful acids and gases all over the body, instead of health and strength. Day and night this ceaseless damage goes on. No matter how strong, its victim cannot long withstand the health-destroying effects of an acid stomach.

Good news for millions of sufferers.
Chemists have found a sure remedy—one that takes the acid up and carries it out of the body; of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well.

Bloating, indigestion, sour, acid, gassy stomach miseries all removed. This is proven by over half a million ailing folks who have taken EATONIC with wonderful benefits. It can be obtained from any druggist, who will cheerfully refund its trifling cost if not entirely satisfactory.
Everyone should enjoy its benefits. Presently the first tablet gives relief.

Honest Toil

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JESUS was a Carpenter. Cromwell was a Farmer. Washington was a Surveyor. Franklin was a Printer. Lincoln was a Backwoodsman. To get at great Character and mighty Achievement, you are invariably led to the source of it all—Honest Toil. We are all Toilers. And there is just as much dignity and honor back of the sweat of the man who digs with his shovel or wields with a hammer as there is behind the brain of the man whose thoughts, trained and organized, direct the energies of countless workers.

The Glory and Reward of Toil lie in the Working Spirit that prompts the smallest effort of a Man.

This earth does not belong to the people who inhabit it, but to those who, in Honest Toil, magnify its Benefits. You owe more to every man than any man owes to you. We are all Debtors—from the humblest to the greatest. Nor is any one of us entirely Independent. In Honest Toil, however, every man earns and pays for his Heritage.

The most Pitiful man on Earth is the one with nothing to do. Whereas, the Happiest man on Earth is the one with the most to do.

So long as you have within you, sound and intact, the scores of marvelous Instruments, for Labor and Service in your Hands, Feet, Eyes, Ears, Mouth—each overlorded by a Master Creation—Your Brain—Complain not that there is nothing for You in Honest Toil. There is everything in it. There is nothing for you outside of it.

SEASICKNESS

SEASICKNESS is a disagreeable malady which is caused by the stomach losing its equilibrium and so forth. People do not always miss the equilibrium at first, but this is not true of the so forth.

Seasickness almost always results from coming in contact with water which refuses to lie flat. There is nothing more terrifying than a large body of water which stands first on one leg and then on the other and causes the apprehensive tourist to wish that he had been carried off by the mumps in early youth. It would seem that science could discover some method of preventing the ocean from rising up and driving inoffensive passengers away from a table d'hôte dinner which was paid for before leaving the dock, but it has not been able to do so. This teaches us that science is of about as much use to the average citizen as the interstate commerce commission.

Seasickness usually sets in as soon as the three-mile limit is passed, and dies a lingering death on reaching the Irish channel. There are several successful cures for this ailment, however, and after a man has tried them all he will be in sight of land and will feel considerably improved. Many a person has started on an ocean voyage relying upon some cure for seasickness recommended by a friend who never got out of the corn belt, only to be bitterly disappointed in its workings and have to be propped up with malted milk.

There are several forms of seasickness which can be contracted without getting off of dry land. Some men can hardly sit down in a low-hung hammock and swing to and fro with a loving wife without thinking of the days when they were free and untamed and becoming violently seasick. Another popular form of this malady is caused by attempting to drink a company of wide-mouthed companions to a complete standstill.

Seasickness has its drawbacks, and there are times when it doesn't seem to have anything else.

Mother's Cook Book

Our field is the world, and our work is before us. To each is appointed a message to bear. At home or abroad, in cottage or palace, Wherever directed, our mission is there.

French Milk Soup.

This is a soup especially recommended for nourishment. Take four cupsful of scalded milk, add a teaspoonful of salt. Thicken with the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, season to taste and serve at once. Do not boil or the eggs will curdle and spoil the appearance of the soup.

Spinach Soup.

Rub one cupful of cold cooked spinach through a sieve, put into a saucepan with one tablespoonful of flour and butter; add a half teaspoonful of sugar and pepper and salt to taste.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the County of Cook, State of Illinois, when truthfully sworn, four cupsful of stock. Serve with croutons.

Emergency Soup.

Take a can of green pea soup and a can of condensed milk, the unsweetened variety; heat together, being careful not to scorch. Serve at once with crackers.

Cheese Balls.

Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, then add two cupsful of grated cheese, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a little cayenne. Form into balls the size of marbles, roll in fine breadcrumbs and fry in a frying basket until a nice brown.

POULTRY FACTS

PUREBREDS PAY IN POULTRY

Experiment Conducted by North Carolina Station With Flocks of Leghorns.

That the value of purebred males counts as much in poultry raising as in stock raising is shown by the records of three flocks of Leghorns, the data for which have been supplied the United States department of agriculture by the North Carolina experiment station. Flock 1, the egg production of which is included in these records, consisted of common hens; flock 2 was produced by breeding these hens to common males; flock 3 was produced by breeding flock 1 to a rooster from a high-producing hen. The following year the original flock laid 59 eggs a hen; flock 2 laid an average of 88 eggs a hen; and flock 3 laid an average of 136 eggs a hen. This increase of 54 per cent in one year tells very specifically the benefits of using a purebred male. But the percentages alone do not tell the whole story, for a big proportion of the increase came at a season—May and June—when the production of flocks 1 and 2 was relatively low and the prices were good.

Standard Bred Rose-Comb White Leghorn.

HENS BECOME FOND OF EGGS

Habit Usually Formed Through Accidental Breakage—See That Nests Are Darkened.

Fowls become very fond of eggs, once they begin to eat them. This egg-eating usually begins through accident, by eggs being broken. Be careful to see that this does not happen. See that the nests are properly supplied with straw, and have them darkened, so that if an egg is broken the fowls will not be likely to discover it. When egg-eating is discovered among the flock, the best plan is to kill the offending hen.

TURKEYS DEVOUR MANY BUGS

If Given Free Range Fowls Will Readily Find Grasshoppers and Other Insects.

Given plenty of range, turkeys will readily find grasshoppers and other insects, green vegetation, the seeds of weeds and grasses, waste grain and acorns and nuts of various kinds. In this way the cost of raising them is very small and the profits large.

GREEN FEEDS ARE ESSENTIAL

Little Chicks Cannot Eat Too Much, and It Pays to Supply Them With Cut Clover.

Young chicks cannot eat too much bran or green food. It pays to give them as much cut clover as they can eat while they are in the brooder house and allow them plenty of green food on the range as soon as they are able to forage for themselves.

RIGHT PLACE FOR BROODERS

Arrangements Should Be Made to Admit Plenty of Light—Warmth of Spring Needed.

Brooders should always be so placed that they have plenty of light and, if possible, so that they will be reached by the sun. Outdoor brooders are not satisfactory until the warmth of spring takes the snow away and dries the ground.

Build a cheap house or shelter.

Grow some green crop in the yard.

Don't keep a male bird. Hens lay just as well without a male.

Purchase well-matured pullets rather than hens.

Incubator chicks are just as strong as hen hatched, all else being equal.

Don't expect great success in hatching and raising chicks unless you have had some experience.

Preserve the surplus eggs produced during the spring and summer for use during the fall and winter when eggs are scarce and high in price.

Your New Home

should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

How much better, when you have a new home, to start right than to have to correct errors afterward from former treatment with other materials, when you come to the use of Alabastine, as does nearly every one sooner or later.

Once your walls are Alabastined you can use any material over it should you desire, but having used Alabastine you will have no desire for any other treatment.

Alabastine is so easy to mix and apply—so lasting in its results—so absolutely sanitary—and so generally recognized as the proper decorative material in a class by itself that it is becoming difficult to manufacture fast enough to supply the demand.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Better write us for hand-made color designs and special suggestions. Give us your decorative problems and let us help you work them out.

USES OF ASPIRIN

Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin 18 years ago, give advice.

Aspirin created a sensation when introduced by Bayer over eighteen years ago. Physicians at once proved its wonderful efficiency in the relief of pain. The genuine, world-famous Aspirin, in "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is safely taken by millions for Colds, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Earache, Toothache, Aching Joints, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Be sure the "Bayer Cross," which is the mark of true "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," is on each genuine package and each genuine tablet.

Boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents and contain proper directions. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoacetic-acidester of Salicylic acid.—Adv.

LONG SINCE HE HEARD WORD

Tramp Probably Would Have Needed Dictionary to Get Proper Definition of Morals.

The tramp was a long, skinny individual with a particularly villainous cast of countenance, and he wore a pair of trousers that had been designed for a man of at least three times his diameter. His rap on the farmhouse door brought out a sour, hard-faced puritanical woman who froze him with one glance and then proceeded to eye him up and down—especially down.

"You needn't ask me for anything," she said, harshly. "I can see that your morals are of the loosest kind and that you deserve nothing."

"Well, mum," replied the tramp, glancing down at his nether garments, "mebbe so, though I ain't never heard 'em called that name before. Prob'ly me tailor ain't jes' up to date, but if you won't give me somethin' to help fill 'em out mebbe you'd spare me a bit of rope to hold 'em up with."—Exchange.

We've All Heard That.

"Have you ever heard any table rapping?"
"No, but I've heard a lot of knocking when a pieced-up supper was being served."

Married people are like shoes—if exactly alike they are not a fitting pair.

No Longer.
"How long do you suppose a young married couple could live on love?"
"As long as it lasts, I imagine."

"CARRY ON!"

If Constipated, Bilious or Headachy, take "Cascarets"

Feel grand! Be efficient! Don't stay sick, bilious, headachy, constipated. Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your breath bad and your stomach sour. Why not get a small box of Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest laxative-cathartic you ever experienced? Cascarets never gripe, sicken or inconvenience one like Salts, Oil, Calomel or harsh pills. Cascarets bring sunshine to cloudy minds and half-sick bodies. They work while you sleep. Adv.

SOME OTHER KIND OF BISCUIT

Mrs. Pample Satisfied Cows Were Not Fed on Anything That Was Composed of Milk.

One after the other, customers had come to the shop and complained about the milk.

"What I want to know," said Mrs. Pample, who looked almost as thin as the milk, "is what you feed your cows on?"

"Feed them on?" snapped the dairyman. "Why, I reckon we feeds them better than a good many human beings I know feeds themselves"—this with a chalky stare at the thin customer. "My cows are fed on the fat of the land, and if their fodder ain't up to the mark, we give 'em the finest biscuits we can buy. And if we can't buy the biscuits, we make 'em. I stops at nothing when I wish to please my customers."

"I'm not denying it," declared Mrs. Pample, "but I challenge you to contradict me when I declare that it ain't milk biscuits you feed 'em on."—London Tit-Bits.

Had Enough.

"What's the fuss at the fountain? Cholly has been drinking there all day."

"Yes, and the druggist has refused to sell him any more ice-cream soda."

It's just as desirable to know when to forego an advantage as it is to know when to grasp an opportunity.

THE COOKIE-LADY.

She is gentle, kind and fair,
And there's silver in her hair,
She has known the touch of sorrow,
But the smile of her is sweet;
And sometimes it seems to me
That her mission is to be
The gracious cookie-lady
To the youngsters of the street.

All the children in the block
Daily stand beside the crock
Where she keeps the sugar cookies
That the little folks enjoy,
And no morning passes o'er
That a tapping at her door
Doesn't warn her of the visit
Of a certain little boy.

She has made him feel that he
Has a natural right to be
In her kitchen when she's baking
Pies and cakes and ginger bread,
And each night to me he brings
All the pretty, tender things
About little by-gone children
That the cookie-lady said.

Oh, dear, cookie-lady sweet
May you beautify our street
With your kind and gentle presence
Many more glad years, I pray;
May the skies be bright above you,
As you've taught our babes to love
You
You will scar their hearts with sorrow
If you ever go away.

Life is strange, and when I scan it,
I believe God tries to plan it,
So that where he sends his babies,
In that neighborhood to dwell
One of rare and gracious beauty
Shall abide, whose sweetest duty
Is to be the cookie-lady
That the children love so well.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS

—WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF MURDER?

IT IS a curious fact that while the most eminently correct person may in dreams commit the most criminal actions the sleep of real criminals is generally peaceful and their dreams, if they have any, are of the most innocuous character. Santa de Santos, the Italian investigator, has made a wide study of the sleep and dreams of criminals and as a result states it as a rule that the sleep even of murderers is dreamless or haunted by innocent visions. Thus the condemned criminal in his cell may be dreaming of green fields and village bells while the upright judge who condemned him is committing manslaughter in dream-land.

These facts are dead against the conceptions of the poets and novelists and conform rather to W. S. Gilbert's statement regarding the "capacity for innocent enjoyment" of the felon "when not engaged in his employment" rather than with Hood's poem, "The Dream of Eugene Aram." So you are not necessarily criminally inclined because you dream of killing some one.

The mystics regard a dream of murder rather unfavorably. If you see others committing murder it is a sign that you will shortly be called upon to answer for the misdeeds of others say some, while others declare that it only means that many hard struggles are before you and it is a warning to "watch your step." If you dream that you are committing murder yourself look out for your reputation and consider well the work you are now engaged in. If you dream that somebody is murdering you suspect secret enemies and unforeseen dangers. In short, it is a sort of warning dream to be on your guard.

Freud has devoted much attention to this dream and regards it as a desire left over from our infancy, a stored-away and forgotten relic of the only mind before we had learned that it was wrong to murder people. Ellis says: "If normal people dream of crime it is because they are more sensitive and imaginative and the sleeping consciousness is strained to the utmost to invent a phantasmal tragedy adequate to account for the waves of emotion which beset it." An interesting thing about a murder dream is that, as a rule, we experience no remorse for our crime but much anxiety to escape its penalty. William Dean Howells has remarked: "In my dreams I am always less sorry for my misdeeds than for their possible discovery." (Copyright.)

SEEKS FOE OF JAP BEETLE

Specialist Has Been Detailed to Bring to This Country Enemy of Horticultural Pest.

The Japanese beetle is going to have its old enemies on its trail in this country. The United States department of agriculture has sent a man to Japan to find those enemies and send them across the ocean. They will then be established in the sections of New Jersey where the beetle has gained a foothold, and they are expected to aid greatly in the control of the pest.

The agent employed in Japan is familiar with Japanese conditions and is a specialist in this kind of work. It is expected that the task will require his sojourn in Japan for two or three years. While something is known of the parasites of the Japanese beetle a great deal is still to be learned only under field conditions where the beetle lives with all the enemies that prey upon it. The beetle reached this country with importations of greenhouse plants, and thus far apparently has been comparatively free from molestations by natural enemies.

Otherwise Content.

"Dat husband 'ob yours," one colored wash lady observed to another, over the dividing back fence, "he shore do seem a right contented man."

"He would be," the other responded, "'Ceptin' for only two things which troubles him. He has to quit eatin' to sleep, an' he has to quit sleepin' to eat."

Easily Remedied.

"Whom have we here?" said the king of the Cannibal Islands as a prisoner in soldier's uniform was dragged before him.

"He appears to be a raw recruit," answered the prime minister.

"Very well, cook him."

A pretty girl doesn't fully appreciate her beauty unless some one is constantly reminding her of it.

GOT MARK TWAIN STIRRED UP

Humorist, Tired of Listening to Series of Remarkable Stories, Rose to the Occasion.

A naval officer said at a banquet in New York:

"Some of the war stories that I hear remind me of Mark Twain. Mark, you know, once sat in the smoking room of a steamer and listened for an hour or two to some remarkable lies. Then he drawled:

"Boys, these feats of yours that you've been telling about recall an adventure of my own in Hannibal. There was a fire in Hannibal one night, and old man Hankinson got caught in the fourth story of the burning house. I looked as if he was a goner. None of the ladders was long enough to reach him. The crowd stared at one another with awed eyes. Nobody could think of anything to do. Then all of a sudden, boys, an idea occurred to me. 'Fetch me a rope!' I yelled. Somebody fetched a rope, and with great presence of mind I flung the end of it up to the old man. 'Tie her round your waist!' I yelled. Old man Hankinson did so and I pulled him down."

Life's Little Problems.

"George, dear!" began the worried woman.

"Yes, wotsit?" grunted George, without looking up from his newspaper.

"Would you mind helping me with a little bit of arithmetic?" she pleaded.

"Not at all."

"Well, if we pay the new cook the wages she wants will we have enough money left to buy anything for her to cook?"—London Answers.

Sad Confession.

"The officer says you were not parking parallel."

"I—I—"

"Don't you know?"

"What is your business?"

"I am a professor of geometry."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FIGHT DISEASES AND WORM PESTS

Trouble Begins in Garden as Soon as Seeds Are Planted in Vegetable Garden.

MANY CAUSES OF AILMENTS

Plants Suffer if Soil Is Not Suited—Weather Is Also Important Factor—Quite Essential to Prepare Good Seed Bed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

From the time the seeds of garden crops are put into the ground until the crops are harvested a succession of diseases and insect enemies may appear, each of which must be fought by the methods that experience has shown to work best in the particular case.

Diseases of plants are due to many causes. Plants suffer if the soil is not suited to them. It may be too rich or too poor or too heavy or too light, or it may contain too much or too little water. It may lack lime and humus. Some vegetables, such as spinach and cauliflower, thrive in cool weather and do poorly in midsummer, while others, like tomatoes and Lima beans, are hot-weather plants. Excessive heat produces wilting or tipburn. Too much water in the soil keeps the roots from the air they need and causes a sickly, yellow growth. Fertilizers in excess or used carelessly may burn the leaves, injure the roots, or prevent seed from germinating.

It always is important to have the soil deeply plowed or spaded and made loose and light with plenty of well-rotted manure or compost and to keep the ground cultivated so that the surface will not become hard or weedy. Use the best seed to be had and sow it liberally to get a good stand, but thin out the plants, as overcrowded plants are in much greater danger of becoming diseased than those that receive plenty of air and sunshine.

The diseases which cause most loss are due to fungi and bacteria. Fungi and bacteria are plants, though usually exceedingly small. The disease-producing forms live on or in our vegetables and fruits, feeding on them and causing the various blights, rots, and spots of which we complain.

Fungi and bacteria grow and multiply rapidly when conditions suit them. Instead of seeds they form spores, which are minute bodies produced in great numbers, to be spread by wind, water, or other agencies, and, like seeds, these spores may germinate, grow into a plant or fruit, and start a new center of disease.

The weather has an important influence on the development of fungous diseases, moisture and warmth being necessary.

True insects are small creatures which in the adult stage have rather hard bodies divided into three portions, head, thorax (chest), and abdomen (belly). They have a single pair of antennae or "feelers," normally three pairs of legs, and usually one or two pairs of wings. Among injurious forms of true insects are beetles, butterflies, moths, sawflies, ants, grasshoppers, plant-bugs, thrips and plant-lice.

Other small creatures in a general way are popularly classified as insects, such as sowbugs, red spiders, mites, and thousand-legged "worms." Insects are classified into (1) chewing or biting forms, which devour leaves and other portions of plants; and (2) sucking forms, which injure and destroy plants by sucking the vital life juices. For the first class, arsenicals are the best remedies; for the second class contact poisons are used.

Gardeners should learn to know the insects which are useful in destroying injurious insects. Prominent among these is the convergent ladybird. It destroys not only all forms of garden plant-lice but the eggs of various insects, such as the Colorado potato beetle. Other beneficial insects are wasps, ichneumon and chalcids flies (minute, wasp-like insects), ground beetles, soldier bugs, syrphus flies, tachina flies, and lace-wing flies. But for the natural enemies of the potato beetle, cabbage worms, army worms and similar pests, all vegetable crops probably would be failures.

Prevention.

The gardener who starts with a clean soil may do much to keep insects and diseases out, and thus save the trouble and cost of applying sprays. Prevention is better than cure, especially in the home garden, which usually must be planted on the same ground year after year.

Some of the worst garden troubles are brought in on the roots of plants and remain in the soil to attack the next crop. So in buying plants of any kind one should be sure that they are healthy and free from insects. The roots should be clean and fibrous, not swollen or knotted. Southern gardeners in particular should be on the watch against root-knot. Cabbage and cauliflower plants should be inspected for clubroot and sweet potato plants for black-rot. Irish potatoes should be treated for scab before planting.

Control Insects That Spread Plant Diseases.

Many insects not only attack the crops directly but also carry plant diseases. Thus, the striped cucumber beetle, squash, melons and related plants; plant-lice carry the cucumber mosaic, the potato flea-beetle, the bacterial wilt, and various other insects occasionally carry spores from diseased to healthy plants.

Avoid Wounding Plants.

In cultivating or working around plants, avoid wounding or breaking them. In pruning make a clean, close cut. In harvesting fruits and vegetables that are to be stored, handle with the greatest care to avoid bruising, as decay most frequently begins where the natural protective covering is broken. Certain insects, such as the potato tuber moth, also gain access at such points.

Sanitation.

Neatness, cleanliness, and order in the garden help in the fight against insects and diseases. As a general rule, the residue of the garden, such as cornstalks, potato tops, etc., are to be turned under to improve the soil. Do this promptly, so that insects and disease spores may not be harbored by the rubbish. In some cases, which will be pointed out later, diseased vegetable remains should be taken out of the garden and burned. Weeds in the garden and around it harbor both insects and diseases, particularly if the weeds are related to the cultivated plants.

Just as soon as any crop is gathered, spade up the ground, and plant something else. Except in the extreme North, rye or oats can be sown to give winter cover.

Crop Rotation.

Farmers have found that by rotating their crops they reduce the injury from plant diseases and insects and also increase the fertility of the soil. This principle applies to the home garden, where, if possible, it will be better to make a new plan each year, placing each vegetable where some other grew the year before—peas on the old tomato ground, beets and carrots after the corn, etc. The details of this rotation must vary in each case according to the climate, soil and vegetables grown and the diseases and insects to be guarded against.

POULTRY NOTES

Keep the house and yard clean.

Provide roosts and dropping boards.

Feed table and kitchen waste to the hens.

Provide a nest for each four or five hens.

Give a heavier feed of grain in the evening.

Give a light feed of grain in the morning.

Let the hens help themselves to a dry mash.

Gather eggs daily; market at least twice a week.

Keep standard-bred poultry. It is more profitable.

Keep poultry free from lice and the house free from mites.

Feed grain in straw or other litter to make the hens scratch for it.

Grow green crops in the poultry yards if they are not in permanent sod.

Build substantial, comfortable poultry houses, but make them as inexpensive as possible.

Hatch early. Early hatched chicks live better, grow better, and the pullets make fall and winter layers.

Sudden fright and excitement at once tells on the egg crop. Never allow strange dogs about where the hens are.

If you have had little or no experience in poultry keeping, start in a small way. Then increase as your experience and success warrant.

Don't let roosters run with the hens after the breeding season is over. The hens will lay just as well and the eggs will be infertile and will keep better.

Many farmers say that labor and time saved in looking after one incubator rather than 15 or 20 setting hens, is enough to make the purchase of an incubator practical.

COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1916, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't lie down on my right side, coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctor had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve."

"Then I came home and started on Milks Emulsion. Thank God I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs were free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 30 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mines completely restored to health."

G. H. Bunn, 6th Ave. & No. 13th St., Terre Haute, Ind.

Thousands of victims of dust-filled air develop the same trouble that Mr. Bunn had. Milks Emulsion costs nothing to try, so why not at least try it?

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physicks. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. It helps build flesh and strength, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream.

No matter how severe your case you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 90c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

SAVES YOU
ON YOUR FUEL BILLS

You can revolutionize the HEATING SYSTEM of your house in ONE DAY.

No mussing up of your living quarters, either! By installing a MOORE'S Pipeless Furnace in your basement and cutting ONE opening in the floor above it, your whole house is heated by JUST ONE FIRE. And you get better heat with less labor and over one-third less fuel.

MOORE'S Pipeless Furnace is the most economical system of house heating it is possible to secure.

The famous MOORE'S Anti-Carbon Fire-Pot (shown at the left) burns all the gas, smoke and soot, thereby SAVING YOU 38 cents on every dollar's worth of fuel you use. It will burn slack coal just as well as the best grades of lump.

Moore's Pipeless Furnace

MOORE'S SELF-CLEANING RADIATOR automatically drops the dust back into the fire-pot, so that the heating surfaces are always clean and can, for this reason, deliver all of the heat in the fuel.

The LARGE MOISTURE PAN located in the most effective place keeps the indoor atmosphere properly moistened for the requirements of good health, which only a warm air system can do. It insures a healthful, warm atmosphere in every room of the house and even in the open halls.

MOORE'S Pipeless Furnace has ALL of the most approved features—many of which are exclusive with it. The GRATE is of the most approved design of revolving bars, operating in pairs by means of a detachable crank. It is very easy to operate and most efficient in cleaning the fire of all accumulated ashes. The ASH-PIT is wide and of large capacity, so that choking of draft is almost impossible. In fact, the MOORE'S Pipeless Furnace is the Simplest System of Heating known.
